Definition of Love

You seem curious to know definition of love
You seem excited to get its meaning
Should not it be a question on everyone's mind?
After searching on Google for many days
The answers come for you from several ways.
I never had to go to the internet
To explore a word, though often I heard.
People want to know definition of love
In this technology-oriented world.
Now let me tell you precisely,
I speak what it is really
For me love is deep and profound
That makes the world go round.

You have to come again

You have to come again
Not for me but for this world,
Don't think I am talking absurd.
You have to come back for the love
That long remained in our hearts
And we used to enjoy in the rose-garden.
You will have to come to show me again
How trees dance gladly in the rain,
How may I tell all about the separation?
How may I say about your distraction?
How may I utter that misconception?
You have to come without my permission.
Whether you have maintained a distance
But you have to come without any assurance
You have to come to show me my worth
As rain comes down to the thirsty earth.
